

Sharepoint 2007 Questions

I have a case where I need to query a list for an item based on the values in more than one field. (For example sake, something like Lastname = Jones and Firstname = John) There may be several 'Jones' and several 'John' in the list. As far as I've been able to tell, the only thing I can do is search for one or the other and the result will always be the first item encountered. How can I query a list from within a SP Designer workflow with matching criteria in more than one field?

Difference Between sharepoint 2003/2007

Answer :: SharePoint Portal Server 2003 offered a great method of aggregating content from multiple sites to a single, easy-to-navigate location, the process was dependent on a users's manual actions to publish the links to the portal areas, a dependency that highlighted the platform's shortcomings. If the person who updated content forgot to publish a link to the portal, business decision makers could not access information. Microsoft responded with SharePoint Server 2007, which offers tools and features that automate business processes and content aggregations. Built-in Web Parts, such as a site aggregator and Content Query Web Part meant that the site administrators can specify what content should automatically roll up to the main portal sites, eliminating manual updates and resulting in sites with up-to-date information. SharePoint Portal Server 2003 has no mechanism for automated workflow or business processes. nbsp;SharePoint 2007 includes several workflow templates that business users can further customize to suit their specific requirements. nbsp;

Answer :: Microsoft Office Visio 2007 makes it easy for IT and business professionals to visualize, explore, and communicate complex information. Go from complicated text and tables that are hard to understand to Visio diagrams that communicate information at a glance. Instead of static pictures, create data-connected Visio diagrams that display data, are easy to refresh, and dramatically increase your productivity. Use the wide variety of diagrams in Office Visio 2007 to understand, act on, and share information about organizational systems, resources, and processes throughout your enterprise.

Answer :: Create a list to hold the information you want to scroll across the screen. Create a public view to that list. Tweak the view so that it displays the information as you want it to scroll. You might consider creating a column so that items expire:

Go to the list you want, and go to Settings --&gt; List Settings

Click Create Column:

Name: displayuntil

Make it a calculated field by selecting Calculated

For the formula, enter “=[Created]+14” (this gives us 14 days or two weeks)

For ‘The data type returned from this formula is:’ select Date / Time

Select Date Only

You can add it to the default view if you want to, but I usually don’t for calculated fields

Click OK

Go to the view you want to filter - if you are trying to ‘display new items for two weeks on the homepage’, then this view will be on the home page.

Click the little Edit button (small triangle) next to the view of the list you want to filter, and select Modify Shared Web Part

Click Edit the Current View

In the Filter options:

Select the calculated field (displayuntil)

Select is greater than or equal to

Type [today] (type [today] exactly, including the brackets)

Enter in any more filters you want, taking care to choose the correct values for and or

Click OK

Increase the number of items to display to 99999

Open the view in Share Point Designer. Go into edit code mode. Enclose the view in MARQUEE tags.

Play with different settings and placements so that you can tweak it the way you want it.

If you want to include that ticker on another page, you will have to open both pages in SPD and copy and paste the marquee and dataview web part into a web part zone on the other page.

If you are ok with using SPD, you might want to skip all that and just create the data view web part from SPD instead of using the browser GUI.
