

Sharepoint Templates Questions

Does sharepoint have a forum template that will also allow for points to be awarded for discussion threads?

Answer :: No, but you could customize it with workflow using SharePoint Designer 2007 to do something like that. For example, every time something is added you could have it trigger to update another list with the username and add to their total points.

I've been doing some major sharepoint customizations on my current project with is a list of Infertility Doctors and Clinics: <http://www.findinfertilitydocs.com>

Read More

Does anyone have any links or download sites that have a free Sharepoint Safety Template or Health, Safety and Environment Template? I've done search after search and can't find anything. I'm not talking about the safety of the software or the program, I'm talking about Workplace Safety, as in OSHA-related Safety.

Answer :: Go to :

<http://www.sharepointcustomization.com/default.aspx>
<http://www.sharepointcustomization.com/d...>

And a good-looking template and modify it using Frontpage or SharePoint Designer.

You can add more webparts or take them away as you need them. Read More

In what directory are Sharepoint Site Templates kept?

Answer :: Site templates are not really kept anywhere, they are installed.

On the Site Settings menu, click Go to Site Administration, and then in the Management and Statistics section, click Save as template. Type a file name using an .stp extension and type a title and description for your site template.

A custom template is persisted as a file with an .stp extension, which is actually a .cab file that you can rename with the .cab file extension and open in Windows Explorer. Read More

I recently downloaded Microsoft Office Sharepoint Designer 2007. But when I opened it and clicked on New, there was no template under any category. I don't know where to get them from as I want to create my personal website. Microsoft online is providing with commercial templates only. Usually personal templates are installed with the software. Please help me out with this issue...

No Accepted answer found View Answer