After nine years of being an award-winning Web authoring tool, FrontPage will be discontinued in late 2006. We will continue to serve the diverse needs of our existing FrontPage customers with the introduction of two brand-new application building and Web authoring tools using the latest technologies: Office SharePoint Designer 2007 for the enterprise information workers and Expression Web for the professional Web designer.

Answer :: It's true, FrontPage is being replaced by another web design product. If your hosting service is worth its weight, they will continue to support FrontPage for some time, as most people will continue to use it for quite a while. .... Read More

The portal should be something like LinkedIn etc.We already have Microsift sharepoint server license .Can we use this for building the portal ? This portal will be hosted on net for public use . The hitch is we need to get thing thing done in another one month.which other technologies can we use for the same purpose?

Answer :: If you only have a month, and you already have Sharepoint, use it. .... Read More

Looking to determine best way to host collaborative meetings with existing capabilities.

Answer :: Do you have a server setup? What kind of bandwidth do you have? Netmeeing works great but is somewhat limited. Sharepoint can be finicky about bandwidth. .... Read More

I have a company that has one parent domain \(dominos.com\) and one child domain \(pizza.dominos.com\)

Now the parent domain dominos host all the server and services such as sharepoint, email, sql and everything else. pizza.dominos.com host just a domain controller for the users in that piece of the organization.

Now over time the way all users have had to login into their local domain pizza.dominos.com was to use one user name and password. A duplicate had to be setup on the dominos.com server as well to host the email box and so on.

So the setup goes we have a set of user names on both domain controllers. And users have to login in both times.

I'm trying to find a way to have users logon to pizza.dominos.com and automatically cross authenticate to dominos.com and still get all their resources. Possibly eliminating the need for duplicate user names. We had done this because while we want all the users to get their services we don't want them to actually login with their desktops to dominos.com, we want them to just get the services.

Hope that makes sense.

Answer :: If you are talking about authenticating to web-based applications, you can use the Security tab in your Internet Options to set both domains as Local Intranet Domains .... Read More
